Allusion and Intertext: Dynamics of Appropriation in Roman Poetry. Stephen Hinds' Allusion and Intertext is a welcome addition to the study of intertextuality which has come to dominate work on Latin poetry. In five chapters which are intended to be readable as separate essays or as a cumulative whole, Hinds addresses what he sees as a reluctance on the part of Latinists to move from the precise, but often narrowly focused and heavily philological studies by scholars such as G. B. Conte and ...

Abstract. This chapter examines the intertextual connotations of physis both as a natural and political state on the basis of the medical metaphor found in Plutarch's Comparatio Cimonis et Luculli 2.7. In these lines of the Plutarchan passage, I will explore the nexus of the inter-relations generated by the metaphorical connotations framing the medical metaphor of aristocratic natures as ...
