The Apology of Socrates, written by Plato, is a Socratic dialogue of the speech of legal self-defence which Socrates spoke at his trial for impiety and corruption in 399 BCE. Specifically, the Apology of Socrates is a defence against the charges of "corrupting the youth" and "not believing in the gods in whom the city believes, but in other daimonia that are novel" to Athens. Among the primary sources about the trial and death of the philosopher Socrates, the Apology of Socrates is the dialogue

The Crito is probably the most interesting of these three dialogues for students of law; although the Defence is in a court, Socrates is not seriously trying to win the vote but is explaining himself. In the Crito, Socrates argues to Crito why one should follow unjust laws as long as they do not demand that one do evil. The Crito is
