Home made wobbler lure. I suppose I learn a little bit every time I make a fishing lure and this one is no different. I carved this lure using a Stanley knife which was the easy part the finish isn't great but it works in that I wanted a wobbler that would dive a couple feet on retrieve. I rushed it and that was the mistake, there are so many stages in making one of these lures and messing up one always shows through in the finished lure.

"Plugs are a popular type of hard-bodied fishing lure. They are widely known by a number of other names depending on the country and region. Such names include crankbait, wobbler, minnow, shallow-diver and deep-diver. The term minnow is usually used for long, slender, lures that imitate baitfish, while the term plug is usually used for shorter, deeper-bodied lures which imitate deeper-bodied ...
