A dad's icharming, funny! memoir of trying to pass along his refined culinary tastes, with some kid-friendly recipes included iNeal Pollack). Armed with the belief that kids don't need puree in a jar or special menus when eating out, restaurant critic and food writer Matthew Amster-Burton was determined to share his love of all things culinary with his daughter, Iris. From the high of rediscovering tastes through a child's unedited reaction to the low of realizing his precocious vegetable fiend was just going through a phase, Matthew discovered that raising an adventurous eater is about exposure, invention, and patience. Sharing in Matthew's culinary capers is little Iris, a budding gourmand and a zippy critic herself who makes huge sandwiches, gobbles up hot chilies, and even helps around the kitchen. This account, with dozens of delicious recipes and notes on which dishes can be prepared by i'little fingers,' reminds us: i'Food is fun, and you get to enjoy it three times a day, plus snacks.' iA very timely and excellent book. iAnthony Bourdain iA fast, funny memoir punctuated with sensible advice and recipes ... Encourages adults to chill the heck out and have fun cooking with their kids. iSeattle Weekly iAn antidote to the ubiquitous advice that bland food is best for little ones. iAssociated Press iFull of great ideas for family meals. In a world of culinary pandering to kids ... Amster-Burton gets the recipe right. iNeal Pollack, author of Alternated iAmster-Burton is equal parts Mario Batali, Ray Romano, Dr. Spock of toddler cuisine, and Mr. Spock of child logic. iSteven Shaw, author of Turning the Tables

Everyone knows how to live the good life in Paris, Provence, or Tuscany. Now, Matthew Amster-Burton makes you fall in love with Tokyo. Experience this exciting and misunderstood city through the eyes of three Americans vacationing in a tiny Tokyo apartment. Follow 8-year-old Iris on a solo errand to the world's greatest supermarket, picnic on the bullet train, and eat a staggering array of great, inexpensive foods, from eel to udon. A humorous travel memoir in the tradition of Peter Mayle and Bill Bryson, Pretty Good Number One is the next best thing to a ticket to Tokyo. Includes a new afterword by the author featuring Christmas in Tokyo, fried UFOs, a robotic sushi restaurant, and more. "The layers of the city, its quirkinesses, emerge as the author and his family spend an intense month living in Tokyo and exploring widely...Warning: this book will make you hungry. You'll yearn, as I do, to catch the next plane to Tokyo, so you can get eating." iNaomi Duguid, writer and traveler; her most recent book is BURMA: Rivers of Flavor iArtisan 2012) "This is the book I've been hoping Matthew would write: smart, opinionated, and wickedly funny, crammed with in-the-know tips and observations about visiting Tokyo. From the intricacies of garbage sorting to the chirpy jingle for the local supermarket, the pleasures of pan-fried soup dumplings to the pain of junsai, I laughed, cringed, and got so hungry that I had to eat three bowls of cereal to make it to the end. I love this book." iMolly Wizenberg, author of A Homemade Life and creator of Orangette

The Natural, No-Fuss, No-Purée Method for Starting Your Baby on Solid Foods iBaby-Led Weaning) makes life so much easier. iThe Times, London Baby-Led Weaning explodes the myth that babies need to be spoon-fed and shows why self-feeding from the start of the weaning process is the healthiest way for your child to develop. With baby-led weaning (BLW, for short), you can skip purées and make the transition to solid food by following your baby's cues. At about six months, most babies are ready to join the family at the kitchen table and discover food for themselves. Baby-Led Weaning is the definitive guide to this crucial period in your child's development, and shows you how to help your baby: Participate in family meals right from the start Experiment with food at his or her own pace Develop new abilities, including hand-eye coordination and chewing Learn to love a variety of foods and to enjoy mealtimes Baby-led weaning became a parenting phenomenon in the UK practically overnight, inspiring a fast-growing and now international online community of parents who practice baby-led weaning!with blogs and pictures to prove it! In Baby-Led Weaning, world-leading BLW authority Gill Rapley and early BLW practitioner and coauthor Tracey Murkett deliver everything you need to know about raising healthy, confident eaters.

Is it possible to be a young child and love whole, plant-based foods? It sure is, and Stan of Stan the Plant-eater is a shining example. Stan the Plant-eater is a fun and entertaining book that is simple and to-the-point for young children. Through the use of rhythmic poetry, children are encouraged to eat whole, plant-based foods and be friends with animals. Stan is a young boy who is a compassionate, kind and loving role-model. He is very excited about healthy food and eating lots of it. But, there are some things that he just won't eat. Young children, as well as the adult reading with them, are provided with ideas for meals and for ways to be kind to animals. Stan the Plant-eater presents the message of health and non-violence in a style that captures the hearts and laughter of children.

One day, Bernie forgot to feed his fish. The fish were hungry. They wanted their food. But, what could they do--Bernie was busy! Well, they did all sorts of funny things. They wrote him a message. They swam upside down. They even performed a dance. They did other goofy things as well, but did they succeed? Did Bernie notice them, and did he finally reward them for their wacky reminders? Three Hungry Fish is especially suitable for children who are about two to seven years of age. Pre-schoolers will enjoy hearing this story, because they'll identify with the three main characters. They will also like the easy-to-see line drawings. The book is formatted landscape view, which makes reading it aloud much more convenient.

MALVINA BERTONATI is a chef and owner of a traditional Italian restaurant iDa Malvina! in one of the most popular seaside tourist destinations: Bonassola, right next to the famous Cinque Terre in Liguria, Italy. She has been cooking with passion for the last 40 years and she received a national award for her tasty, healthy and traditional cuisine. She was knighted for her services to the industry.ALINKA RUTKOWSKA just happened to pass by and fall in love with Malvina's cuisine. She was always very curious about what was going on in the restaurant kitchen but what she heard from Malvina most often was i'fuori dalla mia cucina!', meaning i'get out of my kitchen!'. She obeyed until once she decided that even a complete cooking analphabetic like herself could at least try to replicate the masterpieces being created in Malvina's kitchen. With a pen, paper, camera and Malvina's blessing she compiled the amazing recipes and over 300 photographs into this book.
