Outlandish and emotional, this humorous novel centers on Sheldon Funk, a struggling actor who dies in a bus restroom only to awaken during his autopsy and attack the coroner. Fleeing into the wintry streets of Toronto, Sheldon realizes he's now a zombie--as if he didn't have enough on his plate already. His last audition, reading for the reality television series House Bingo, had gone disastrously wrong. His mother is in the late stages of dementia, his savings are depleted, his agent couldn't care less, and his boyfriend is little more than a set of nice abs. All Sheldon has to his name is a house he can barely hold onto and a cat that is more pillow than mammal. Now he also has to contend with decomposition, the scent of the open grave, and an unending appetite for human flesh--and on top of it all, there's another audition in the morning. In order to survive his death without literally falling apart, Sheldon must find a way to combine his old life with his new addiction, which would be a lot easier if he could stop eating vagrants. A hysterical take on fame, love, religion, politics, and appetite, this is the story of the "everyzombie" people long to be.

Classic contemporary horror from the Shamus and Derringer-winning author of Small Crimes. Charlie is a Husker on the prowl in the New Hampshire wilderness when he falls in love with one of them: a girl named Jill. Loving Jill means leaving the Husk clan, with its gruesome cannibalistic rituals, and that will be far more difficult - and dangerous - than Charlie could have foreseen. It's only in New York City that the secret to ending his terrible cravings may reveal itself - if it doesn't kill him and everything he has grown to love first. A darkly imagined tale, all the more frightening for its apparent ordinariness and plausibility, Husk is guaranteed to leave readers shaken, stirred - and chilled to the bone.

INTRODUCTION In the pursuit of developing new comforts and luxuries the greedy modern man is unintentionally got entangled into several environmental problems. Once the solar energy arrives on the earth, the earth's surface heats up and begins to emit terrestrial radiation back into the atmosphere. As carbon dioxide, water vapour, methane, nitrous oxide, ozone, chlorofluorocarbons (CFC's) and some other minor gases are nearly opaque, they obstruct or trap the outgoing terrestrial radiation or heat and makes the globe warmer than it be otherwise [John Houghton, 1997].

Even though Nathan Ruiz didn't know it at the time, the cost of realizing his dream was to be plunged into a nightmare. When a voice from his past breaks the monotony of his life, Nathan must make a choice. Does he accept her invitation to work at her family's new winery, even if it means moving back to a town he swore he'd never live in again? It's an once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to live the dream, but can things really have changed that much? Bizarre murders begin to reshape the population and identity of Hollow Heights. Upon Nathan's return, the original foundation of the town is called into question. The townspeople grow fearful, and some begin to doubt the claims that the police have actually solved the murders. In the shadows of the investigation's grip on the community, another mystery emerges. A growing number of paranormal events further confuse the line between reality and the unknown and unknowable. Nathan begins to fear for his sanity. What is real? What is an illusion? What is the work of forces he can't understand? Is there something otherworldly at work, or has Nathan simply lost control of his mind?
