Explain that Karen Kaufman Orloff's I Wanna Iguanais about a boy named Alex who wants to adopt his friend's iguana. He decides to write this desire down in friendly letter form, and give it to his mother. The book is told from both his and his mother's perspective as they write friendly letters to each other.

Alex and his mother write notes back and forth in which Alex tries to persuade her to let him have a baby iguana for a pet.

Alex just has to convince his mom to let him have an iguana, so he puts his arguments in writing. He promises that she won't have to feed it or clean its cage or even see it if she doesn't want to. Of course Mom imagines life with a six-foot-long iguana eating them out of house and home. Alex's reassurances: It takes fifteen years for an iguana to get that big. I'll be married by then and probably living in my own house. and his mom's replies: How are you going to get a girl to marry you when you own a giant reptile? will have kids in hysterics as the negotiations go back and forth through notes. And the lively, imaginative illustrations show their polar opposite dreams of life with an iguana.

Alex and his mother write notes back and forth in which Alex tries to persuade her to let him have a baby iguana for a pet.

A hilarious companion to I Wanna Iguana. Ever since their baby sister came along, Alex has been forced to share a room with his little brother, Ethan, and it's a nightmare. Ethan always breaks stuff, snores like a walrus, and sticks crayons up his nose. No hardworking, well-behaved, practically grown-up boy like Alex should have to put up with that! Writing letters to his mom convinced her to let him get his pet iguana, so Alex puts pencil to paper again, this time determined to get his own room. Though all of his powers of persuasion can't get his dad to expand the house, he does come through with a fun alternative to give Alex some space of his own.

A young boy describes why he wants an iguana and all the things they would do together.

Alex and his mother write notes back and forth in which Alex tries to persuade her to let him have a baby iguana for a pet.

Through a series of letters and e-mails, Alex tries to convince his parents that he should not be staying with his grandparents while they are away. Alex slowly comes to realize that he can have fun, even at Happy Hills Retirement Community. Full color.
