CATIA macro selection is a very important topic to learn when automating processes. It is ground in every macro. Hence for every action in a macro, you need some kind of selection. There are single and multiple ones. There are also two ways to select elements. So those are user selection and search by name. Hence when you have the selection you want to use that for loop control. For example ...

CATIA stores the macros in macros libraries. They can be stored in one of the three locations – Folders (VBScript and CATScript macros), Project files or documents like CATParts, CATProducts and CATDrawings. CATIA allows using only one macro library at a time. While creating a new CATIA macro library, it is necessary to ensure that the folder or path locator already exists.
