The years 1800-1848 is known as an era of expansionism and began with Thomas Jefferson's election as president. The transfer in parties is recognized as being a peaceful transfer. With his term as presidency, Jefferson focused on limiting government power. Despite his attempts at limiting the federal government's power, he did the opposite with the purchase of the Louisiana Purchase from France's Napoleon Bonaparte, which also contrasts to his belief in a strict interpretation of the Constitution.

Period 4. 1800-1848. The United States began to develop a modern democracy and celebrated a new national culture, while Americans sought to define the nation's democratic ideals and change their society and institutions to match them. The nation's transition to a more participatory democracy was achieved by expanding suffrage from a system based on property ownership to one based on voting by all adult white men, and it was accompanied by the growth of political parties.
