Rubrics. A rubric is a way of assessing work that lists the criteria for evaluating a student's work (for papers this might be: organization, use of evidence, etc.) and also explains the differences in quality in each criterion (Andrache). Since most of our students have never read a philosophy paper before, let alone written one, it is hardly surprising that they don't know what makes a paper good or bad.

Thesis papers need to be properly understood and support the author's claims of research. Therefore, it is also important for thesis writers to come up with an argumentative piece. This means that the writer must be able to support their points of view and to have well-crafted prose that will help support their claim and give readers a good insight into how they think and what they believe.
