For many years, experiments using chimpanzees have been instrumental in advancing scientific knowledge and have led to new medicines to prevent life-threatening and debilitating diseases. However, recent advances in alternate research tools have rendered chimpanzees largely unnecessary as research subjects. The Institute of Medicine, in collaboration with the National Research Council, conducted an in-depth analysis of the scientific necessity for chimpanzees in NIH-funded biomedical and behavioral research. The committee concludes that while the chimpanzee has been a valuable animal model in the past, most current biomedical research use of chimpanzees is not necessary, though noted that it is impossible to predict whether research on emerging or new diseases may necessitate chimpanzees in the future.

Media Flight Plan was developed in response to the need for affordable media planning simulations in the university classroom. Professional level media planning software ranges in price from hundreds to thousands of dollars. Media Flight Plan, including both the textbook and the online simulation, sells at or below the average price of a used textbook. MFP provides university students' access to not only realistic simulations of planning software, but also includes access to professional syndicated data like MRI, SRDS, Nielsen data, (all by permission) and other syndicated sources that only large corporations and agencies can afford. Besides the online software simulation, the text includes eight chapters that cover basics like basic math models involved in media buying/planning, and exercises that cover calculation of audience ratings, media share, reach and frequency, and gross rating points. Case studies are included for actual Fortune 500 clients. All cases require students to interpret and apply professional syndicated data and employ the basic methods for writing marketing driven media plans. Both authors, Dennis Martin and Dale Coons, have professional ad agency experience. Coons is executive vice president in a major agency where he directs research, media planning and client development. He is among the most sought-after experts in the field of advertising research. Martin worked on national brands as a copywriter and creative director and co-authored Strategic Advertising Campaigns, a national best-seller for Advertising Age's publishing division. Earning his Ph.D. at University of Illinois, he achieved national and international recognition as a professor of marketing communications.

In nine volumes, explores each of the earth's major ecological regions, defining important features, animals, and environmental issues.

Continued population growth, rapidly changing consumption patterns and the impacts of climate change and environmental degradation are driving limited resources of food, energy, water and materials towards critical thresholds worldwide. These pressures are likely to be substantial across Africa, where countries will have to find innovative ways to boost crop and livestock production to avoid becoming more reliant on imports and food aid. Sustainable agricultural intensification - producing more output from the same area of land while reducing the negative environmental impacts - represents a solution for millions of African farmers. This volume presents the lessons learned from 40 sustainable agricultural intensification programmes in 20 countries across Africa, commissioned as part of the UK Government's Foresight project. Through detailed case studies, the authors of each chapter examine how to develop productive and sustainable agricultural systems and how to scale up these systems to reach many more millions of people in the future. Themes covered include crop improvements, agroforestry and soil conservation, conservation agriculture, integrated pest management, horticulture, livestock and fodder crops, aquaculture, and novel policies and partnerships.

The book is a cutting-edge contribution to the debate which has occurred for some time on the pros and cons of secondary education becoming more closely and explicitly related to preparing young people for the world of work. The book provides concrete examples of the vocationalisation of secondary education, with particular reference to the situation in Africa. The target audience for the book includes policy-makers, practitioners, administrators, education planners, researchers, teachers and teacher educators with a concern about the relationship between secondary education and education for the world of work (with particular reference to technical and vocational education and training - TVET.) The book appears in the Springer book series on ' Technical and Vocational Education and Training: Issues, Concerns and Prospects ' and compliments the ' International Handbook of Technical and Vocational Education and Training ' and other publications in the ' International Library of TVET ' all of which are publications of the ' UNESCO-UNEVOC International Centre for TVET ' in Bonn, Germany
