There is much I could say about "The Light Bearer" which has already been said, but as I don't review all the books in McCullough's Masters of Rome series (of which I've read each book), I don't feel I can properly do justice to the greatness of this sweeping epic, which unlike McCullough's work, spans not just from Rome, but from a not well known Germanic tribe called the Chattians.

Light Bearer Preservation: Light The World Up Without Setting Yourself On Fire is a unique guide designed to help those who illuminate the world to achieve it without burning themselves up or out. Preservation will be had in breaking the cycles of habitually abandoning and denying self in favor of service to others. Right now, you may be asking yourself who is a light bearer and why are they in danger of setting themselves on fire. A light bearer is one who literally shines its light to make the world a better place. They feel commissioned to spread goodness, cheer, truth, and wisdom. The light bearer comes in many shapes, forms, and titles. No matter the model they come in, they are the encouragers who incite and light the world daily. However, since light-bearers are used to carrying the light without regard to themselves, they can easily forget self-care, leading to fatigue and damage. Although the goal of bringing light to the world is an awe-inspiring ideal, it must be tempered with self-preservation. Light Bear Preservation is a space to do this in a guided manner. It is partially a piloted journal and, to some extent, a good sense guide. It is chocked full of nuggets of wisdom, affirmations, and motivational messages. Additionally, it has space to digest, reflect and release.
