Stakeholder Theory Toward A
Theory Of Stakeholder

Stakeholder theory has been a popular heuristic for describing the management environment for years, but it has not attained full theoretical status. Our aim in this article is to contribute to a theory of stakeholder identification and salience based on stakeholders possessing one or more of three relationship attributes: power, legitimacy, and urgency.

ATTRIBUTE-BASED STAKEHOLDER SALIENCE

Attribute-based salience analysis in the stakeholder literature began to assume its present form in the 1994 Toronto Conference on stakeholder theory (held at the University of Toronto and led by the late Max Clarkson), wherein the participant working groups reported their consensus that three attributes—power, legitimacy, and urgency—are core to stakeholder analysis, Mitchell, Agle, and Wood (1997) later translated these and other ideas into a theory of ...

Another approach to the stakeholder concept is the so called descriptive stakeholder theory. This theory is concerned with how managers and stakeholders actually behave and how they view their actions and roles. The instrumental stakeholder theory deals with how managers should act if they want to flourish and work for their own interests.
